Welcome to our 40th Anniversary Human Rights Awards Dinner.

We are thrilled to be celebrating 40 years of human rights advocacy this evening. The original values upon which the organization was built have stood the test of time. As Don Fraser, former Congressman and Mayor, and one of the founders of The Advocates said, “human rights should be the organizing principle for the planet.” These values include recognition of the inherent dignity of every person and the principle that we all have a part to play in making human rights a reality. We believe that together, we can move the world toward our vision of all people living with dignity, justice, and equality.

Tonight, as part of our celebration, we recognize the amazing work of our volunteers. They are the lifeblood of the organization, and they inspire us every day. Last year, we had approximately 1,400 volunteers working with us on a wide variety of projects, from observing proceedings in immigration court here in Minnesota to advocating for government accountability at the United Nations.

We also celebrate the impact of the work we do together, both big and small. We continue to represent victims of human rights violations and work to change the systems that allow those human rights to occur in the first place. We save lives by representing asylum seekers and victims of trafficking in their individual cases and we improve conditions in which people are living through changed laws and policies.

For 40 years we have been building the human rights movement. We will not be deterred by attacks on human rights or the backlash to past human rights victories. Because of your ongoing support, we are stronger than ever and ready to take on the challenges of the future.

Thank you for being an advocate for human rights.

KEYNOTE CONVERSATION

Tonight’s Keynote Conversation will be moderated by Fred de Sam Lazaro. He is executive director of the Under-Told Stories Project, a program that combines international journalism and teaching at the University of St. Thomas in Minnesota. He has served with The NewsHour since 1985 and was a regular contributor and substitute anchor for PBS’ Religion and Ethics Newsweekly.
We are presenting Justice Alan Page with the 2023 Don & Arvonne Fraser Human Rights Award for his life-long commitment to human rights. Justice Page has actively advocated for human rights, equality, and social justice throughout his career as a Supreme Court Justice, attorney, and professional athlete.

As an attorney and later as a judge on the Minnesota Supreme Court, he was known for his strong leadership on criminal justice issues, such as the need to reduce racial disparities in sentencing and address systemic inequalities in the legal system. He has long recognized the right to education, and he worked to include the right to education in the Minnesota Constitution.

Through the Page Education Foundation, Justice Page and his wife Diane have helped thousands of students of color in Minnesota pursue their dreams of higher education, providing not just financial aid, but also guidance and support. In 2018, Justice Page received the Presidential Medal of Freedom, the highest civilian honor in the United States, for his work in civil rights and education.
The Advocates is honored to present this year’s Human Rights Defender Award to Greater Caribbean for Life (GCL). Since 2013, GCL and its 49 members have been working to achieve the permanent abolition of the death penalty in every country in the Greater Caribbean Region. GCL advocates nationally, regionally, and internationally to change hearts and minds to eliminate the death penalty in law and in practice.

In a region that retains strong opposition to abolition, GCL is a beacon for human rights.

As fellow members of the World Coalition Against the Death Penalty, The Advocates has partnered with GCL for several years and collaborated on international advocacy relating to eight countries in the region. Last year, GCL members and The Advocates joined forces at the UN in Geneva to advocate for recommendations relating to Barbados and the Bahamas and to inform the international community about the status of the death penalty in the region. We also expanded our collaborations to include UN submissions highlighting issues for women on death row.

We thank GCL for its partnership and its work advocating for human rights and join GCL in celebrating its 10th anniversary!

For leadership in the movement to abolish the death penalty in the Caribbean region.
Delicious food brings people together and connects us to our loved ones near and far. Volunteers Linda Svitak and Christin Eaton are inviting new people to the table with their work on a cookbook that tells stories of resilience, hope, and celebration through recipes shared by clients and members of our immigrant communities in Minnesota. Through their work, Linda and Christin are building communities and understanding, one meal at a time.
Before dawn on February 24, 2022, Russia attacked cities across Ukraine, beginning an invasion that continues to cause destruction, displacement, and death. Shortly thereafter, Amy Fiterman answered the call to volunteer and conducted dozens of interviews with Ukrainian human rights defenders to record what they had seen and heard that would fall within the scope of war crimes, crimes against humanity, and genocide. These first-hand accounts informed our report to the Prosecutor to the International Criminal Court for the investigation into the situation in Ukraine. Amy’s expertise as a litigator was invaluable in documenting these experiences and in advocacy to the UN to magnify Ukrainian voices.

For more than three years, Brittany Knutson has interned and volunteered with the WATCH court observation project. Brittany initially connected with The Advocates in early 2020, and the first part of her internship did not turn out as expected. Minnesota courts switched to remote hearings, creating changes and challenges for everyone. Yet Brittany was still there, monitoring proceedings for access to justice for victims of gender-based violence. Despite now living on the West Coast, Brittany continues to volunteer, consistently creating court calendars for WATCH.
After the fall of Kabul in August 2021, thousands of individuals were evacuated from Afghanistan. Of these, 1,400 resettled in Minnesota and North Dakota. With only temporary status, however, they fear return to a Taliban-controlled country. Congress has failed to pass the Afghan Adjustment Act, leaving asylum as the best pathway to safety for many evacuees. In response to this unanticipated and unprecedented legal need, hundreds of attorneys and legal professionals have volunteered to provide pro bono legal representation. We appreciate every volunteer who has contributed to this effort.

Volunteers at our law firm partners Faegre Drinker and Lathrop GPM have represented asylum seekers for decades. Their responses to the legal needs of our Afghan neighbors were extraordinary: collectively representing 36 families seeking asylum. Their representation not only benefits clients in Minnesota and North Dakota, but also family members abroad who were not able to participate in the evacuation. Overall, these two firms will impact more than 110 lives. We are grateful for their exceptional contributions.
We celebrate Fredrikson’s commitment to pro bono and involving all professionals in pro bono opportunities. Specifically, we recognize Fredrikson’s paralegals and other professionals who have worked on immigration cases and helped The Advocates for Human Rights respond to increasing legal needs and an ever-changing landscape of laws and regulations. Most recently, these team members have made essential contributions on asylum cases, helped us increase rural access to legal services, and assisted with emergency legal screenings for labor trafficking victims. We are inspired by Fredrikson's outstanding contributions.
Tom Kayser was a longtime supporter and friend of The Advocates. He was a leader in the legal community, championing LGBTQI+ rights, women’s rights, and racial justice. He was committed to diversity in the legal community and led efforts to provide opportunities to underrepresented communities. He took the most challenging pro bono cases and lived the value that every person was entitled to effective representation. Tom long supported his wife Marlene’s involvement in The Advocates and co-hosted our Women’s Human Rights Program house party for nearly 25 years.

Janet Leslie was a long-time supporter, volunteer, and friend of The Advocates. Janet was committed to women’s human rights, including reproductive rights and freedom from violence. Janet traveled to the United Nations in Geneva with our team to advocate for women’s rights. She brought a keen observation of global women’s rights issues from her travels, as well as a quick wit and a talent for storytelling. She was deeply committed to women’s equality and gave both her time and resources to making the world a better and safer place for women in the United States and around the world.

1395 volunteers contributed $11.3M in in-kind human rights work in 2022

Join the many volunteers each year who engage in hands-on human rights work. Volunteers contribute critical research and advocacy skills and become advocates for human rights.

GET STARTED TODAY.
Since 1983, The Advocates for Human Rights’ innovative approach has been at the forefront of the human rights movement. By engaging volunteers directly in the work, we leverage millions of dollars annually to improve human rights conditions.
After more than a decade of representing people on death row, The Advocates joins the World Coalition Against the Death Penalty to build toward global abolition.

1991 Travels to Albania to investigate impact of legal reforms.

1992 Documents conditions of Somali refugees living in Kenya.

1999 Opens the Sankhu-Palubari Community School in Nepal, providing free education to 375 children each year.

1990 Holds a mock trial of the Khmer Rouge to document human rights violations in Cambodia.

2010 Launches the Africa Advocacy Project to identify partnerships with human rights defenders.

We ground our work in the lived experiences of our partners and clients. Rooted in deep expertise and strong relationships, The Advocates works in our home community and in partnerships around the globe to address some of the most intractable human rights issues.
Although international law clearly prohibits extrajudicial and summary executions, human rights activists and investigators lacked the tools to build a case against state actors when bodies were found.

The newly formed Minnesota Lawyers International Human Rights Committee (now The Advocates for Human Rights) teamed up with experts in law and forensic science to fill a critical gap in accountability.

The resulting protocol became the global standard for the investigation of state-involved killings. It has been used in investigations throughout the world, including in Rwanda, Bosnia, Guatemala, East Timor, and Peru.

Today the Minnesota Protocol on the Investigation of Potentially Unlawful Death continues to provide detailed procedures for crime-scene investigations, interviews of suspects and witnesses, the excavation of graves, post-mortem examinations, and the analysis of skeletal remains.

These investigations play a vital role in holding state actors accountable for unlawful deaths.
When Hillary Clinton called for the world to recognize women's rights as human rights at the 1995 Fourth World Conference on Women in Beijing, few international human rights organizations were ready to act.

Minnesota Advocates was already leading the way. In 1993, the organization was challenged to respond to violence against women in Romania and invited by a partner organization to document the problem. A volunteer-led delegation spent twelve days interviewing judges, lawyers, doctors, human rights groups, women's groups, students, and government officials about the government's response to domestic violence. Analyzing the interviews through the lens of human rights, the groundbreaking report found that by failing to respond to domestic violence, Romania violated its international obligations. Invitations from partners in Bulgaria, Albania, and other countries soon followed, launching our Women’s Human Rights Program.

Human rights defenders took these reports and advocated for change in their countries. Today a vibrant generation of women’s human rights defenders has created a movement to protect women from violence in countries throughout Central and Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union.
In 2005, following more than two decades of conflict, Liberia embarked on a truth and reconciliation process. But the process threatened to leave out the stories of over 1.5 million Liberians who fled from their homes during the protracted conflict.

While the quest for justice and accountability remains ongoing, it was the first-ever truth commission to include the diaspora. It set a standard for widespread inclusion of diaspora voices in transitional justice.
The Advocates' handled just three asylum cases in 1984. By 2022, that number was 3000.

International law provides the right to seek and enjoy asylum from persecution. But without access to counsel, that right remains illusory. Meanwhile, global instability has driven a dramatic increase in the number of asylum seekers worldwide. The Advocates mobilizes pro bono professionals to represent victims of human rights abuses living in the Upper Midwest as they face complex immigration legal proceedings.

Today our clients include people fleeing persecution and torture in search of asylum, unaccompanied children facing immigration proceedings on their own, victims of human trafficking, and people detained by federal immigration officials.

The impact is not in the numbers. It is in the countless lives restarted, free from fear and full of hope following a grant of asylum.
2023 AND BEYOND:
MAKING THE VISION A REALITY

The vision that launched The Advocates for Human Rights in 1983 holds true today. Everyone has a part to play in making human rights the organizing principle for the planet.

Human rights are interconnected and interdependent. And now more than ever, the human rights movement must be too. The Advocates works across movements and around the globe to build a world where dignity, justice, freedom, equality, and peace are a reality.

Today, recognizing the inherent dignity of our clients means providing the legal help needed to win asylum. And it means providing the opportunity to advocate to change the conditions which forced them to flee.

Recognizing the strength of our partners means documenting what they are experiencing. And it means providing the training and tools for them to change the systems that violate human rights.

Recognizing the power of our volunteers means providing a chance to do hands-on human rights work and become advocates for human rights.

Join us for the next 40 years, and help us change the world for good.
